HARPSWELL.

THIS TOWN was incorporated January 20, 1758. The town is bounded on the north by Brunswick, on the east by New Meadows River and on the south and west by Casco Bay. The acreage of the Neck is 4,570 acres, according to measurements made in 1731. It consists of a peninsula called Harpswell or Merriconeag Neck, which extends southwest from Brunswick. The word in full would be Merru-cooneag, from Merru (swift, quick) and oongan (portage), meaning the quick carrying place. To enumerate the attractions offered the summer visitors here would be an endless task. Harpswell is recognized by all to be one of the favored spots of Casco Bay. Few places offer such fine roads for driving or bicycling, some twenty miles of unsurpassed scenery, which well repay seeing. The advantages offered for yachting, boating and deep sea fishing are equal to any on the Maine coast. Among the historical places of interest may be seen the old Church at Harpswell Center, which was erected about 1758, and is now used as the Town building. North Harpswell offers to view the residence of the late author and story writer, Rev. Elijah Kellogg. Here he resided the greater part of his life. Without doubt no writer of the past century was so dearly loved by the young people as this celebrated author and preacher. The Congregational Church, where he preached for over fifty years, is another of the many points of interest. The Congregational Church was built 1843. On April 25, 1844, an invitation was extended Rev. Elijah Kellogg to settle as their pastor.

It will be with a feeling of satisfaction for pleasures spent, that the summer visitor to Harpswell will take his leave.

CHURCHES.

The Methodist Church was erected in 1854-5; work upon the building commenced in October, '54. The Church was dedicated May 17, 1855. Rev. J. E. Clancy is the pastor.

The Baptist Church was erected in 1836 and rebuilt in 1890. The officers at present are Deacon, Wm. F. Clark; Clerk, Mrs. A. C. Stover; Treasurer, Mrs. John Toothaker; Trustees, Issac Clark, Mrs. Louis J. Stover and Daniel R. Stover. Superintendent of Sunday-school, D. R. Stover.

The Union Church was built in 1841, and was dedicated the same year by the Universalist society. It is situated near the Academy at North Harpswell.

SCHOOLS.

The Harpswell Academy was finished in 1859. The term commenced Monday, September 5, 1859. The school was kept up for several years, but finally failed for want of adequate support and management. There are at present eight school-houses on the Neck, where a Spring, Fall and Winter term is kept during the year. Rev. Frank Chase is the Superintendent of Schools.

MAIL ROUTES.

The first mail was thought to have commenced here in 1810. The first post-office was established in 1842 at West Harpswell; Washington Garcelon, Postmaster. The free Rural Delivery Route was established here May 1, 1898, from Brunswick, E. M. Alexander, Carrier. Frank L. Pinkham, Postmaster South Harpswell; Daniel Merriman, Carrier, South Harpswell route.

CENTENNIAL HALL.

Centennial Hall was built in the year of 1876 by individuals. The present officers are Herbert C. Merriman, Eli M. Alexander and Wm. Randall, Trustees; H. C. Merriman, Treasurer.

To Business Men:

THE Casco Bay Directory, as its name indicates, is a directory of the island trade district and all points in the bay connected with Portland by regular steamboat service. As such it is the only reliable Directory of this section. The publishers wish to warn business men against fraudulent publications, copies of voting lists, or names obtained from unreliable sources, having no circulation beyond the advertiser's copies. The Casco Bay Directory is a personally canvassed list of all the residents and summer residents of its district and is backed up by a substantial subscription list. The names of summer hotel visitors for this work are compiled from the Casco Bay Breeze and can be relied upon as a representative list of summer travel.

We wish to thank patrons and all others who have in any way assisted in the publication of this issue of the Directory.

BAILEY'S ISLAND - - MAINE.

OCEAN VIEW HOTEL.

New and Newly Furnished.

Cool, Airy Rooms.

The Ocean View, as its name indicates, commands a wide and sweeping view of the ocean and the shores of Bailey's Island from each room in the hotel. We have no uncomfortable nights, and blankets are needed nearly all summer. The hotel is within two minutes walk of the steamboat wharf and post office, and centrally located as regards the places of natural beauty on the island. Excellent boating, fishing and bathing facilities. Fine sand beach at the head of the famous Mackerel Cove, near the hotel. The water this season is from a living spring in the granite rock, near the hotel, and is as clear as crystal. The proprietor requests that booking for rooms be made as far in advance as possible. A spacious addition made in 1903, nearly doubles the sleeping accommodations of past seasons and also provides space for an enlarged dining room and culinary department.

RATES : { $2.00 per day.
 { $8.00 per week and upwards.
 { Table Board, $6.00.

MAIL COLLECTED AT THE HOTEL TWICE A DAY.

BAILEY'S ISLAND.

BAILEY'S ISLAND is recognized by the summer visitors of Casco Bay to be one of the finest spots along the Maine coast, situated as it is some twenty miles from Portland, a sail of two hours on the Harpswell Steamboat line. The Island is about two and a half miles in length and very narrow, in some places not over one hundred feet, having an elevation of something over seventy-five feet. No more beautiful spot could be desired where one could wish to spend a vacation, free from the strife and confusion of the busy city.

Although far removed from the surroundings of the main land, the accommodations are such that one can readily reach any of the many islands of the Bay at almost any time, the Harpswell Steamboat line touching two points of the island ten times a day. The Northern and Southern portions of the island are well covered with fine fir trees, which add greatly to the beauty of the surroundings, and along the Southern side can be had no finer view of the broad Atlantic as far as the eye can see. To watch the breakers here is a sight that will always linger in the memory of one who loves nature in all its glory. North of the island is what is called Water Cove, which makes a fine harbor, and where one can see every day fishing vessels at their anchors. On the eastern side of the bank one may visit Giant Steps, a very curious freak of nature, these steps being some forty feet in length, and having the appearance of being built by man. They set back in a recess of perpendicular ledge, and are of iron stone, the ledge being of a soft nature. There is another curious rock formation near at hand, called Thunder Hole, which is a cave in the ledge, where the water rushing in and out makes a noise like distant thunder, hence the name Thunder Hole. No finer place can be imagined for those who wish an afternoon's rest, surrounded by beautiful trees and the restless sea.

On the Western side is Mackerel Cove, one of the most beautiful harbors on the coast of Maine. This cove, fifteen hundred feet in length, the mouth being very narrow, has a depth of water sufficient to accommodate vessels of heavy tonnage. Here lovers of sea bathing will find all they would desire, and every day during the summer season the beach is spotted with bathers enjoying their delightful pastime.

Bailey's Island has, without doubt, more fine summer cottages than any two islands on the coast, which are principally owned and occupied by New York and Boston parties. The hotel accommodations are equal to any on the bay, it being the pride of all to leave nothing undone for the comfort of the summer visitors. The roads are all that could be desired for bicycling and driving.

Golf Links are one of the many attractions.

The Island is part of the town of Harpswell.

ORR'S ISLAND.

THIRTY years ago when the pioneer steamboats of the Harpswell Steamboat Company made their first trips down towards the eastern part of Casco Bay, landings at Orr's Island were made by means of dories, there being then no wharf where the present one stands, except possibly one or two so-called tide wharves, at which small vessels could make landings at high tide only. A few years later, when the first steamboat wharf was built, this island was the most eastern landing within the limits of the Bay.

Geographically the island is similar to the other large islands of the bay, being very irregular in coast line, deeply indented with gulfs and coves, with alternating sandy beaches and bold, rocky cliffs. The surface is also uneven, presenting a contrast of heavy pine and fir growth, with open fields and meadows, the forest growth in most places reaching to the extreme edge of the shore. A direct road is had to the mainland by means of the romantic Orr's Island Bridge to Great Island, and from that island to the mainland by the picturesque Gurnet Bridge.

The road on Orr's Island runs for the most part on a high ridge from which glimpses of the sea can be seen at intervals. It has an extreme length of about five miles, and a varying width of from one-eighth mile to two miles. Ready communication is had with Portland and the outer world by means of the transportation lines already mentioned, and the sail to the city of twenty miles is made in a surprisingly short time on express trips. There are in summer, as is the rule on most of the islands,

GREAT ISLAND.

IN consequence of the large size of this Island and close connection with Brunswick by the well-known Gurnet Bridge, it seems but natural to suppose it to be a portion of the mainland. Its steep, wild shores, sung of in prose and poetry, are an endless succession of sharp points, cosy coves and sandy shores, from which slope up the green fields and tilled land of the farmers, these fields in turn having for a background the forests.

Since the establishment of steamboat connection with Portland, parts of this island have been much sought by seekers for recreation on the Maine shores, and although not so well known as some of the other islands, the fact is apparent to the visitor that here is a place that is bound to grow in popularity, the demand for select building locations being even now quite active. The free rural delivery of mail having done away with the necessity of the local offices, there is now only the office at Cundy's Harbor, where is located the centre of population and summer business. It is only a question of a few years when this will be one of the most frequented places in the bay, its charms of scenery alone being sufficient to bring it to the most favored notice of the traveling public. The summer visitor of Casco Bay will do well to consider Cundy's Harbor and Great Island as one of the spots where he can most profitably spend his vacation. Another very attractive and picturesque spot is Gun Point, which can be reached by boat landing from steamers of the MacDonald Line at Card's Cove, and also by carriage from Orr's Island.

CLIFF ISLAND.

CLIFF ISLAND is perhaps the least known of any of the more important islands of Casco Bay, and hence has even a better opportunity for growth than many of the larger islands whose attractions to the summer set are more widely known. There are better reasons why Cliff, or Crotch Island, as it was formerly called, presents to the better class of Summer travel a strong claim for patronage. The first and most important point is that it is one of the outside islands, out in the blue deep, where the waters of old ocean are clear as crystal, and the restless changing sea is ever wearing away the serrated rocks which are the foundation of the island. In bold contrast to the scene of surf and granite on its coast is the magnificent pine and fir growth which now covers about four-fifths of the surface.

The island is a part of the City of Portland, although it has no city airs withal. There are several boats a day to and from Portland and to the lower islands. The class of cottages here are modern built and of handsome designs, being occupied by some of our best non-residents, and as the steamer lands at the pier in summer the scene is one of life and enjoyment.

There are several boarding houses and all enjoy an excellent patronage. The Island is not one of the largest in point of size, but fully makes up in its natural beauties for any lack in this respect. From its southern side can be seen the picturesque Jewell's Island, only a half mile distant, and beyond the open sea.

In point of churches and schools, Cliff Island has both: also an excellent grocery and general store, post-office with two mails a day in summer, etc., etc.

GRIFFIN'S COVE, CLIFF ISLAND.

LONG ISLAND.

LONG ISLAND, formerly a part of the town of Cumberland, now attached to Portland, is one of the most important islands in the bay, both in point of size and popularity. The sail to this island, about five miles from the city, is a most popular one, and is enjoyed by thousands in the summer time, both to enjoy the far-famed clam bake and shore dinners, served here perhaps better than anywhere else in New England; and to pass a few weeks in a spot of delightful coolness and comfort in the most enjoyable company.

In the Casco Bay pavilion connected with the leading hotel of that name, dances are held twice a week through the entire summer, which are always attended by the guests of the hotel and families of the leading cottages, while for a day's amusement, a visitor can make choice of the active sports which make a vacation at Casco Bay one round of enjoyment. In this connection it may be said, however, that on Long Island is the finest surf-bathing beach in this vicinity. The long rollers and combers from the ocean here break and foam on as fine and hard sand as could be desired. The beach being in the form of a crescent and very evenly graded, surf bathing can be enjoyed at any time of tide. On the north and west shores are clam beaches, where a plentiful supply of these bivalves can be had for the digging.

One of the principal attractions to those who wish for shaded walks and drives, are the fine groves, thick with the balsam-laden pines, which are a feature of this portion of the Maine coast. The roads are excellent; there are several well stocked stores carrying a general sup-

COUNTRY AND SEA SHORE COMBINED.

Chebeague is noted for its fine drives, bathing, fishing and boating privileges. If you are looking for the ideal summer resort, then visit the island which is considered by physicians the most healthful spot in New England. The Hill Crest is a strictly new and modern house in every respect; modern plumbing and drainage, toilet rooms having been put in this year. The view from the broad piazzas, which extend around three sides of the house, is a varied one of sea and islands with the Maine hills for a background. Tennis court adjacent to the house. Excellent steamboat service. Five piers on the island. Fourteen boats a day to and from Portland and the islands. Boat landing 3 minutes from the house.

ONCE A VISITOR YOU WILL ALWAYS BE WITH US.

GREAT CHEBEAGUE ISLAND.

THIS ISLAND is second in size of the Casco Bay group and presents a most varied and pleasing aspect to the eye, its wooded vistas of green pine boughs, through which pass the quiet roads and by-paths, offering an appreciative relief from the bold coast scenery.

"Chebeague Island is beautiful for situation," these were the words of a resident of another resort in beautiful Casco Bay. The source of this opinion gives it value. It is also the opinion of the rapidly increasing number of summer visitors, as it is growing in popularity as a summer resort each year. It is only ten miles from Portland, good boat accommodations; the very best of roads for driving or bicycling, being constructed of shells; these, together with its charming views, make it a delightful place of rest and recreation.

The inhabitants are of good old stock and are endeavoring to keep the tone of the island high, and the high class of visitors who come here, shows there are those who appreciate these conditions. The excellent opportunities for bathing and boating, the shady retreats for walks, with an occasional hay-rack ride, furnish abundant amusement for this class of people. Without doubt, Chebeague has a grand future.

MAIL.

Mails arrive in summer at 10.30 a.m. and 3.00 p.m.; close at 6.15 a.m. and 4.30 p.m.; in winter at 4.00 p.m.; close at 8.00 a.m. Money order office. H. W. Bowen, P. M. The post-office is under excellent management, iron mail boxes being placed at several points on the island,

SPECIAL ATTENTION TO JOBBING.

Cousin's Island—Littlejohn's Island.

(Town of Yarmouth.)

THE SCENERY here is very attractive and a more pleasant spot for a summer vacation could not be found. The surface is well wooded with pine and hard wood growth. The drinking water supplies are excellent. Littlejohn's Island on the east is connected by a bridge and is a fine drive. There are many points of interest and the Islands are a lively place in summer. A short row or sail of one-half mile on smooth water takes one to the mainland. Steamer accommodations to and from Portland are frequent and the sail is a most pleasing one. The patronage of these Islands in summer may be said to exceed any other island in the bay, according to their size.

BAPTIST CHURCH.—Regular services in summer at 2 p.m. School District No. 1, Yarmouth, thirty weeks, divided in three terms. Both the School building and Church are handsome, modern structures. Daily mails. Mrs. J. S. Glover, P. M.
